About the Graduate School of Banking

For 65 years, GSB has provided exceptional advanced management education for financial services professionals. GSB is widely recognized as the leading and most progressive banking school in the country offering the most comprehensive curriculum, a world-renowned faculty, and state-of-the-art facilities. Many of the more than 19,000 GSB alumni now occupy positions of leadership in their banks, the industry, and their communities.

- GSB helps you understand and address the complex challenges in the financial services industry.
- GSB offers participants proven solutions to meet those challenges.
- GSB utilizes the best faculty – many of whom are bankers, former bankers, or consultants to the industry – who bring real-life examples to the learning process.
- GSB offers the most comprehensive curriculum which aids in your leadership development and allows you to gain a “big picture” view of the entire organization and the financial industry.
- GSB offers a hands-on learning experience so students are actively involved in the learning process through bank simulations, computer labs, intersession projects, case studies, and networking with peers.

How the Program Works

The Graduate School of Banking uses a mix of lectures, small group discussions, computer simulations, and case studies. It is a 25-month program where students come to Madison for two weeks in August for three consecutive years. In addition, participants undertake intersession projects designed to reinforce and apply the knowledge acquired in the resident sessions. The assignments are customized to their organizations and often lead to improved operations and results for their financial institutions. The state-of-the-art Bank Management Simulation serves as a capstone course where students “put it all together” and experience the challenge of managing the bank. Teambuilding and networking among students and instructors provide a lasting pool of resources which graduates and their organizations can rely on for years to come.

About the Scholarship

The scholarship amount is $1,250.00 for each year of the student’s attendance (approximately 1/3 of the annual tuition fees) for a total value of $3,750. Anyone who applies for the scholarship will receive a refund of the first year’s $350.00 GSB registration fee if they attend the 2010 Session of the Graduate School of Banking.

Please note: This scholarship is for people who will be entering their first year at GSB. A separate application for the School must be completed via the GSB website: https://www.gsb.org/gbp_req.htm
